View the stunning coastline, past rugged and windswept cliffs, spectacular scenery and fabulous unspoilt beaches. It's a coastline sprinkled with historic castles, churches and forts. Every twist and turn in the road will reveal new sights. On goes the road over bridges and under arches, past bays and beaches and strange rock formations. Dramatic scenery and historic sites steeped in myths and legends.

Visit the Giant's Causeway Visitor Centre

Enjoy a self guided tour of the Giants Causeway Visitors Centre, the Giant's Causeway is composed of thousands of strangely symmetrical basalt columns which jut out to sea between Port Ganny and Port Noffer. Legend has it that the whole Causeway was built by the Irish giant, Finn MacCool, so as to travel dry-shod across the sea to Scotland. Generations of guides have embroidered the tale until it is hard to disentangle modern invention from ancient folklore. In fact the Causeway is a product of the volcanic activity, which altered the face of Ireland, Scotland, Iceland and Greenland many millions of years ago.

Today, you will take a self-guided tour of this iconic site. After, enjoy a scenic drive back to the hotel, via Portrush and Portstewart.

Travel to Portrush

Portrush is a small seaside resort town on the north coast of County Antrim, Northern Ireland. It neighbours the resort of Portstewart. The main part of the old town, including the railway station as well as most hotels, restaurants and bars, is built on a 1 mile –long peninsula, Ramore Head.

Travel to Portstewart

A charming seaside town on Northern Ireland's Causeway Coast, Portstewart is known for its long sandy beach, lively promenade, and elegant Victorian architecture.
